

Doretha Wynn Edgecomb Children's Board Family Resource Center News Update

The Doretha Wynn Edgecomb Children's Board Family Resource Center in Temple Terrace will be reopening on June 1st with limited services by appointment only, including story time, arts and crafts, homemade play dough and free play. Our computer lab is also open for use and has been a great resource for those who need to check unemployment applications, Medicaid renewal and bill payments.

We have continued our diligent community outreach to families and still offer support in every way we can. In June, we will focus on Hurricane Preparedness. For this, we will be looking for a speaker to visit our center and educate approximately 25 families on the hurricane and disaster planning and safety. We will also provide kits that each family can keep in their household to use in times of emergency.

We are seeking donations of batteries, flashlights, first aid kits, blankets, candles, card games, coloring books, books, crayons and battery-powered radios.

If you or someone you know has any of these items, please let me know and I will be more than happy to arrange a pickup or drop off. This would help us tremendously as we enter Hurricane Season and plan to serve our community with educational support, guidance and peace of mind during these every-changing times.

Thank you so much for your partnership with the CBFRC. It means a lot to our staff and families, and it makes us all stronger. I am looking forward to all the ways we will continue to grow this year.
